Conner appears to cover all the ground necessary in center and will be kept there. White played a great second yesterday, and he had some hard chances. Damon went in for the last two innings. He does not yet seem to have the ball under control. Hollingsworth in center and Collins in right made brilliant catches for the Outings. Campbell caught a good game, and Crosby, though he had plenty of speed, was hit pretty freely at times. It was a good practice game for Indianapolis. good practice game for Indianapolis.

There were 300 or 400 people at the park, many of them "rooting" for the Outings. The air was rather chilly, and, after eight innings had been played both players and spectators had had enough and the game was called with the score 15 to 10 in favor of Indianapolis. The "Outings" were somewhat enthused over the first inning's work and their rooters were noisy, but the latter soon subsided, for Watkins's men began driving in runs and soon had enough to driving in runs and soon had enough to

Chance for the People to Turn Down

Disgraceful School Board. The School Board election held Friday night was widely discussed yesterday. The defeat of Miss Eliza G. Browning, city librarian, was a surprise to those who are not familiar with the tactics of the controlling majority. Wherever the topic was discussed there was indignation. It is claimed by Miss Browning's friends that she was sacrificed to save Professor Goss, who was re-elected to the superintendency of the city schools. It is known that Mr. Goss was opposed to Miss Browning and that he has not been friendly toward her administration of library affairs for some time. It is also known that Commissioners Roth and Loeper were arrayed against Goss. This has been a board secret for a year. It was necessary to secure the votes of these two commissioners to re-elect Goss, and "trading" was employed. Commissioner Loeper demanded Miss Browning's head, and he was willing to forego the pleasure of knifing Goss to get even with the librarian. In payment for this sacrifice he demanded that the other members of the majority cast their ballots against Miss Browning. These members lent a willing ear to the commissioner's proposition. Ever since the attempt was made to get a new library bill through the Legislature several members of the majority have been inimical by Alfred Bason, Jean Calderhead, Anna Sanborn and the Y. M. C. A. boys' choir.

At Meridian-street Church, where Max Leckner is director and Charles Hanson is never forgiven those who labored in the interests of its passage. They felt that the effort to change the library management was a gross piece of presumption and was a direct imputation on their ability and integrity. It seemed to be an affair or honor with these gentlemen. There was a feeling among the members of the majority that Miss Browning had "lobbied" in favor of the library bill, and these gentlemen gallantly vowed to get even. It has been said that Miss Browning would have been cut off at the April election in 1895 had her enemies dared to show their hands then. They realized that her defeat, closely following the adjournment of the Legislature, would too plainly indicate petty spite on their part. So the majority waited its opportunity.

The question has been raised as to whether the new board, when it is reorganized in June, will be bound by the action of the present board and will be recognize the newly elected librarian. A member of the board is of opinion that the new organization will be bound by all contracts made by its predecessor. But in the event that Mr. Harrison waits until after the June election before deciding to come here the board can use its own pleasure about taking him. In the meantime Miss Browning will continue at the head of the

There will be five vacancles on the board to be filled in June. The retiring members are Martindale, in the Third district; Vonnegut, in the Ninth district; Loeper, in the Sixth district, and Galvin, in the Seventh district. The vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. Appel will also have to be filled. Mr. Loeper, who made the surly fight on Miss Browning, desires to be re-elected. The other retiring members have not announced themselves. Mr. Blackledge, on the library question, said: "The charge has been made against the recent management of the library that it lacked the discipline and system necessary to prompt and efficient service. The cause of this is clearly the fact that power has not been given to Miss Browning to appoint or remove employes. One person in a library who openly violates rules necessary to its proper management, can ruin the entire service. The gentleman who has been chosen librarian made the condition that authority should be granted him to appoint and remove without the dictation of the board. I believe as a business principle of public service it is sound. 'Since I have been on the board I have advocated granting such authority to the but have deemed a resolution to that effect in open board as certain to fail. To withhold Miss Browning the authority necessary to the successful conduct of her office, and then charge her with shortcomings directly traceable to that fact, is highly unjust to her, and is especially empha-F. sized by proposing to give the new li-brarian the authority withheld from her. "I notice I have been quoted as opposing proposition to continue Miss Browning office until the new librarian arrives. The statement attributed to me was made ov another member. If Miss Browning wishes to continue I certainly would not object. A very graceful thing for the board to do would be to make her assistant li-brarian."

PROPOSED RALSTON MONUMENT. Committee Will Not Let Dispute as to the Grave Interfere.

There is some controversy as to whether Alexander Raiston's remains are at Greenlawn Cemetery or Crown Hill. Calvin F. Darnell says that in 1874 the grave at Greenlawn was pointed out to a Council committee and the bones removed to Crown Hill. Historian Nowland says the committee did not move the remains of Raiston. However, the committee which proposes to erect a monu-The Outings were made up for the most | ment to Raiston as the man who planned part of professionals, and they put up a the original Indianapolis will not allow this pretty fair article of ball. Miss Noble's Lectures.

Yesterday afternoon Miss Harriet Noble of Indianapolis, delivered the sixth and last lecture in a Shakspearean course before the Terre Haute High School. The Gazette of that city says: "It was a continuation of the play of 'Hamlet.' She dealt with the elements of mystery and problem in the plot: with the nature of the central idea. and with the characters. Especially was it devoted to an effort to interpret the clusive. perplexing and ever-fascinating character of Hamlet." A member of the class writes as follows of the course: "It becomes a pleasurable duty of a member of Miss No-ble's class to make known to those who had not the pleasure and advantage of this course what might have been theirs. Such an advantage is not offered every day, even in Terre Haute, and the choice of Miss Noble for this particular work reflects very much credit upon those who influenced her to help us. Miss Noble is undoubtedly a woman of unquestioned and unquestionable woman of unquestioned and unquestionable ability. Her work here has shown her to have a breadth of knowledge and depth of insight into her subject which are not reached by many. Her style is impressive and entertaining, while there is in the manner of presentation a uniqueness that is captivating. She is certainly master of her art. A woman of noble bearing, she at once inspires confidence. Terre Haute cannot do better than call her among us during future seasons."

Miss Noble has been the recipient of a number of social favors in her visits to Terre Haute. Yesterday Mrs. Frank Mc-Keen gave her a beautiful luncheon party. Miss Noble was the first Indiana woman to graduate at Vassar College. Mrs. McKeen was a student there during part of Miss Noble's course, and then became acquainted

THE STATE LIFE'S BUSINESS.

Harry B. Gates Says the Company Is Not Conforming to Law.

Harry B. Gates brought suit yesterday against the State Life Insurance Company for the cancellation of a policy. The plaintiff charges that the company misrepresented to him the terms of the policy and has held him liable for certain assessments in violation of its contract. It is claimed that the company violates the State law and that the contracts issued by it are null and void. The plaintiff wants judg ment for the amount of money paid out by him in premiums and asks to have the pol-

The State Life Insurance Company was incorporated in 1894. The books at the office of the Auditor of State show that on Dec. 31, 1895, the company had 731 policies in force. During the last year two policies were paid and thirty-five forfeited. Some time ago complaint was made to the Auditor that the company was carrying on the regular line insurance business without conforming to the rules laid down for the regular life insurance companies. The State Life Insurance Company was admitted to the State as an assessment company:

Additions to State Library.

The State Library has recently had the addition of a number of new books. A series containing the histories of the nations, another of the heroes of the nations, and another on historic towns have recently been added to the library. There is a belief in the minds of some that the State Library is only for the benefit of a few who wish to make investigations, but it is public, and its books are for the use of everybody.

An Alleged Directory Company. August Murphy, of the Polk Directory Company, is in receipt of a letter from Pittsburg concerning the United States Publishing Company, which claims to have an office in the Second National Bank building in that city. The letter states that no such company is located in that building, and the writer thinks that men who claim to represent the United States Publishing Company are frauds.

Increase in Money Orders.

During the quarter ending March 31, the money order department of the postoffice issued 66,561 money orders, amounting in value to $459,313.22. During the same quarter of 1895 63,958 orders were issued, representing $426,451.62. The comparative statement indi-cates an increase of 2,603 in number of money orders and $32,861.60 in their values.
